PREFACE

In preparing the present book, the author has endeavored primarily to present all the essentials of Latin grammar in the simplest possible way.

By far the majority of first year Latin books completely ignore the order of subjects as treated in the Latin grammar and mingle the study of forms with the study of syntax. The reason for this, it is said, is to lend variety, and thereby an added interest to the work of the first year. In very recent years, too, beginners' Latin books have had a tendency to load their pages with an excess of material regarding the relationship between Latin and English. This, too, is done in the hope of increasing the interest of beginners in their early study of the language.

The purpose of all these innovations is worthy, indeed, but the real purpose of the beginners' book seems to have been forgotten. The first Latin book should aim to give the student a complete mastery of the forms and of the essentials of syntax, all within the compass of a year's work, in order that in the second year he may study intelligently such Latin as Caesar's "Gallic War," and may at the same time make a more detailed study of the Grammar. This is no easy task for a single year's work, and accordingly the utmost economy should be exercised in selecting the material for study, and the greatest care should be applied to procure the most effective arrangement of this material.

Thus only matters of the greatest importance have been presented here. At the same time we feel sure nothing really essential has been omitted. Since the Latin usually read in the second year is Caesar's "Gallic War," the vocabulary has been made up largely of the words most commonly found therein.

The reading of continuous prose should be started as early as possible, probably at Lesson 30. For this purpose, easy Latin selections with full notes will be found at the back of the book. These bits of prose have been taken from Nepos's "Lives" and Caesar's "Gallic War." Some prayers and hymns of the Church have also been included in this section. These may be read and translated very early in the year's work, and may be memorized very profitably, at least in part.

Since a large portion of the second year's work is a systematic study of the Grammar, the present volume has followed the order of the standard grammars, thereby familiarizing the student at once with the most important tool for his Latin studies. In this way the student will not have to adapt himself to a new system of Latin grammar study so soon after his struggle with the arrangement presented in the first Latin book.

Digitized by Google

Indeed, as he becomes familiar with the first year book, he at the same time learns the order and arrangement of the Grammar. The orderly arrangement of the Grammar has an intrinsic value in itself, the loss of which has never been counterbalanced by any new arrangement intended to lend increased interest. In the present book, just as in the grammars, the forms to be memorized are presented first, followed by the essentials of the syntax.

The student must have a thorough mastery of the forms before he can study and apply the rules of syntax intelligently. It is then much better to concentrate on this work of pure memory first, even to the distaste of the student, as the interest in the study of Latin will be greatly increased later when he realizes his proficiency in the elements of the language and sees his success in the actual application of these fundamentals.

Since this book has been prepared primarily for Catholic schools, it contains, besides Latin prayers and hymns, the principles of the Italian as well as the "Roman" pronunciation of Latin. It is not our purpose to discuss the merits of these two systems. The so-called "Roman" pronunciation is undoubtedly the nearest approximation to Latin as it was spoken in the classical period of antiquity. The Italian pronunciation has been advocated strongly by the Pope, in an effort to procure some uniformity in the spoken Latin of ecclesiastical gatherings. The various other methods of speaking this ancient tongue, known variously as "Continental," "Modern," etc., have nothing whatever to recommend them except, perhaps, their facility. They consist for the most part of the application of the principles for pronouncing one's own native tongue, whatever it may be, to the speaking of Latin.

Finally we wish to express our sincere gratitude to the Rev. Romain Butin, S.M., Ph.D., of the Catholic University of America, not only for many valuable suggestions, but also for his great interest and practical assistance in preparing the manuscript for the press. Thanks are due also to Rev. T. J. McGourty, Ph.D., and Rev. F. J. Cöln, Ph.D., both of the Catholic University of America, for having read the manuscript and for making noteworthy suggestions.

INTRODUCTION

1. This introduction should first of all be read carefully by the pupil, and then used for reference.

Alphabet

2. The Latin Alphabet is the same as the English except that the Latin has no j or w. I is used both as a vowel and as a consonant. Consonantal i is printed in some books as j.

Classification of Sounds

3. The Vowels are a, e, i, o, u. The other letters are consonants. The diphthongs are combinations of two vowels pronounced as one. They are ae, oe, au, eu, ui.

4. Roman Method of Pronunciation

- (a) Vowels, when long, are pronounced as follows: ā like a in father; ē like e in prey; ī like i in machine; ō like o in note; ū like u in rude.
- (b) Vowels, when short, are pronounced as follows: \( \mathbb{i} \) like \( a \) in \( along; \) \( \mathbb{i} \) like \( i \) in \( pit; \) \( \mathbb{o} \) like \( o \) in \( or; \) \( \mathbb{i} \) like \( u \) in \( put. \)
- (c) Diphthongs, being combinations of two vowels, are pronounced as two vowels in quick succession. Thus: ae like ai in aisle; oe like oi in coin; au like ou in out; eu like e-oo; ui like oo-1.
- (d) Consonants are for the most part pronounced as in English, but the few exceptions should be noted carefully:
- b, d, f, h, k, l, m, n, p, qu, r, x, z are pronounced as in English, but be and bt are pronounced as ps and pt.
  - c and g are always hard as in come and go.
  - i as a consonant is like y in yes.
- t is always hard as in tin, and never as the sound of sh as in English mention.
  - s is always a hissing sound as in sin, and never like z as in ease.
  - $\mathbf{v}$  is always like  $\mathbf{w}$ .

ph, ch, and th are to be pronounced practically like English p, k, and t. Doubled consonants such as II, mm, tt, etc., are not pronounced as in English like single consonants, but an effort should be made to pronounce both members of the combination distinctly.

Syllables

5. A syllable consists of a vowel or diphthong either alone or with one or more consonants. Therefore a word has as many syllables as it has vowels or diphthongs: con-ci-pi-ō, I perceive.

Digitized by Google

In dividing the word into syllables, a single consonant between two vowels belongs with the following vowel: pa'-ter, father.

Where there are two or more consonants between two vowels, as many are joined with the following vowel as can be pronounced with it: ho'-spes, guest; mon-strum, omen.

Compound words are separated into their component parts: ad-est (ad, near; est, he is), he is present.

Double consonants are separated: pu-el'-la, girl.

The last syllable of a word is called the ultima; the syllable before the last is the penult; and the one before that is the antepenult.

Quantity of Vowels

6. Vowels are long (*) or short (*), according to the length of time used in pronouncing them. Thus in English, the ī of machine takes more time than the ǐ of pin. In this book, the long vowels are marked by a horizontal line above them; short vowels are left unmarked.

No definite rules can be given for determining the quantity of Latin vowels. One must become familiar with them by observing and learning the quantity as marked in every part of the book.

A few general rules, however, for determining the quantity of vowels are of great assistance:

- 1. A vowel is long before nf, ns, as infero, I bring in; insanus, mad.
- Vowels resulting from contraction are long, as cō'-gō (coagō), I collect.
- 3. Diphthongs are always long, and so need not be marked, as cause, cause.
- 4. A vowel is usually short before nt, nd, as amant, they love; amandus, to be loved.
- 5. A vowel is short before another vowel or h.as cō'-pǐ-a, abundance; tra'-ho, I drag.

Quantity of Syllables

7. A syllable is long or short according to the length of time consumed in pronouncing it.

A syllable is long or takes a long time in pronunciation when it contains a long vowel or diphthong, as lēgēs, laws; aedēs, temple. Such syllables are said to be long by nature.

A syllable is long when it contains a short vowel followed by x, z, or any two consonants, except a mute<sup>1</sup> followed by l or r, as dux, leader; sacerdos, priest. Such syllables are said to be long by position.

A syllable is short if it contains a short vowel followed by a vowel, by a single consonant, or by a mute with 1 or r, as honor, honor; hiems, winter; patria, native land.

Accent

8. In words of two syllables the first receives the stress of the voice or accent, as te'git, it covers; te'm plum, temple.

Words of more than two syllables receive the accent on the penult (next to the last) when it is long, otherwise on the antepenult (second before the last), as amā're, to love; mi't tere, to send.

EXERCISE

9. Divide the following into syllables. Accent and pronounce carefully, remembering to sound long vowels long, and short vowels short.

The Lord's Praver

Pater noster, qui es in caelis, sănctificetur nomen tuum. Adveniat regnum tuum; fiat voluntas tua sicut in caelo et in terra. Panem nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie. Et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris. Et ne nos inducas in tentationem, sed libera nos a malo. Āmēn.

Inflections

- 10. The Parts of Speech in Latin are the same as in English, except that the Latin has no article: thus, nouns, adjectives, pronouns, verbs, adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions, and interjections.
- 11. Inflection is the change words undergo in form to show change in meaning. The inflection of nouns, adjectives, and pronouns is called declension; with verbs, conjugation. Adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions, and interjections have no inflection.
- 12. Declension.—Nouns, pronouns, and adjectives have the following cases:

Nominative, the case of the subject.

Genitive, like English possessive, or objective case with of.

Dative, like English objective with to or for.

Accusative, the case of the direct object.

Vocative, the case of direct address.

Ablative, like English objective with by, from, with, in.

Locative.—The traces of another case, the locative, denoting place where, occur in names of towns, and a few other words.

13. Conjugation.—Latin verbs have:

- 1. Three finite moods: Indicative, subjunctive, imperative; besides infinitives, participles, supines, gerunds, and gerundives.
- 2. Six tenses: present, imperfect, future, perfect, pluperfect, future perfect.
  - 3. Two voices: Active and passive, as in English.
  - 4. Three persons: First, second, and third, as in English.
  - 5. Two numbers: Singular and plural, as in English.

Gender

14. Latin, just as English, has three genders: masculine, feminine, and neuter.

Gender is determined partly, as in English, by the meaning of the noun, but more frequently by the ending.

- 15. General rules of gender by meaning.
- 1. Names of males, and of rivers, winds, months, and mountains are masculine, as: pater, father; Tiberis, the Tiber; auster, south wind; Iānuārius, January; Apennīnus, Apennines.
- 2. Names of females, and of countries, towns, islands, and trees are feminine, as fīlia, daughter; Ītalia, Italy; Rōma, Rome; Dēlos, Delos; ulmus, elm.
  - 3. Indeclinable nouns are neuter, as nihil, nothing.
- 4. The principles for gender by ending will be given later under the different declensions.

16. Italian Pronunciation of Latin.

For those teachers who prefer to teach the Italian pronunciation of Latin, the following general rules may be of assistance:

- (a) In general, vowels in Italian are pronounced as in the Roman pronunciation of Latin.
- (b) Diphthongs in Italian are also pronounced as in the Roman pronunciation of Latin, except ae, which rarely occurs in Italian. When the diphthong ae does appear, it is pronounced as Latin e, that is, like e in prey.
- (c) Of the consonants, the following are to be noted as being different from their regular pronunciation in English.
  - c, soft before e and i, like ch in charity.
  - g, soft before e and i, like j in just.
  - h, is always silent.
  - r, as in English, except that it is rolled more.

s, as in English, except that between two vowels it sounds like z in dozen.

z, usually like English ts in fits.

cc, before e or i, like tch in match.

ch, before e or i, always hard, like k.

gg, before e or i, sounds like dj in adjust.

gh, before e or i, is hard, like g in game.

gl, before i, like Il in million.

gn, like n in onion.

sc, soft before e or i, like sh in she.

Double consonants are always pronounced as two separate consonants;

i. e., with double emphasis.

PART I.—INFLECTIONS

Lesson 1

FIRST DECLENSION

17. There are five declensions of nouns, distinguished by the final letter of the stem. It is customary, however, to indicate the declension from the ending of the genitive singular.

Declension	Stem-ending	Gen. Sing. ending
I	-ā-	-ae
II	-0-	· -ī
III .	-i- or a consonant	-is
IV	-u-	-ūs
V	-ē-	-ēi

FIRST DECLENSION (-ā-) STEMS

mensa, f., table

18.			Singular	Case-endings
	Nom.	mēnsa	a (or the) table	-a
	Gen.	mēnsae	a table's, of a table	-ae
	Dat.	mēnsae	to or for a table	-ae
	Acc.	mēnsam	a table	-am
	Abl.	mēnsā	from, with, by, or on a table	-ā
			Plural
	Nom.	mēnsae	tables, or the tables	-ae
	Gen.	mē nsārum	tables', of tables	-ārum
	Dat.	mēnsīs -	to or for tables	-īs
	Acc.	m ēnsās	tables	-ās
	Abl.	mēnsīs	from, with, by, or on tables	-īs

- 19. The base or that part of the word which remains unchanged in inflection is found by dropping the termination -ae of the genitive singular, as mēnsae, base, mēns-.
- 20. The vocative case in all declensions is like the nominative, except in certain nouns of the second declension.
- 21. Latin has no article. Thus mensa may mean table, a table, or the table; and in the plural mensae, tables or the tables.
- 22. Town names and a few common nouns have a locative case in -ae: as, Rōmae, at Rome; mīlitiae, in service.

Digitized by Google

23. Most nouns of the first declension are feminine. Names of males, however, are masculine: as, agricola, farmer; nauta, sailor; porta, port.

24.

VOCABULARY

agricola, ae, m., farmer.
fābula, ae, f., story.
fīlia, ae, f., daughter.
incola, ae, m., inhabitant.
īnsula, ae, f., island.
lūna, ae, f., moon.
nauta, ae, m., sailor.
porta, ae, f., gate.
puella, ae, f., girl.
rēgīna, ae, f., queen.

25.

EXERCISES

- 1. Agricola, fābulae, lūna. 2. Fīliae, incolarum, Insults. 3. Nautae, portīs, puellās. 4. Rēgīnam, fābulās, agricolārum. 5. Īnsula, lūnīs, portās. 6. Puella, rēgīnārum, incolae. 7. Agricolās, nautārum, nautās. 8. Fīlia, fīliārum, fīliīs. 9. Portīs, portam, portae. 10. Puella, fābulā rēgīnae.
- 26. 1. To the queen, the stories (as subject), from the moon. 2. To the farmer, for the sailors, of the inhabitants. 3. The girls (as direct object), of the story, to the inhabitants. 4. The gate (as subject), by the gates, of the queens. 5. The daughters of the sailor, the inhabitants of the islands. 6. To the girls of the island. 7. With the story of the farmer. 8. From the sailors of the island.

27. Present Indicative Active of a Verb of the First Conjugation.

Singular
amō, I love, am loving, do love.
amās, thou lovest, you love, etc.
amat, he, she, it loves.

Plural amāmus, we love. amātis, you love. amant, they love.

All verbs of the first conjugation are inflected like amo.

Remember that in Latin the subject of the verb if it is a personal pronoun (I, thou, he, we, etc.) is not expressed unless emphatic. It is implied in the verb.

28.

RULES OF SYNTAX

- 1. The subject of the verb is always in the nominative case.
- The verb agrees with the subject in number and person. filiae amant, daughters love.
- The object of the verb is in the accusative case. poēta amat filiam, the poet loves his daughter.
- A noun used with another noun to complete or limit its meaning is put in the genitive case.

filiae agricolae, the daughters of the farmer, or the farmer's daughters.

29.

VOCABULARY

est, he, she, or it is.
et, conj., and; et... et, both... and.
laudō, I praise.
nōn, adv., not.
rōsa, ae, f., rose.
sagitta, ae, f., arrow.
silva, ae, f., forest.
stella, ae, f., star.
sunt, they are.
terra, ae, f., land, country.
ubi, adv., where, when.
vāstō, I lay, waste.
via, ae, f., road, street.
vocō, I call, I summon.

N.B.—It is very important for the student to remember from the outset that the order of words in a Latin sentence is free. Although it may be stated that usually the subject and object (if they exist) of a Latin sentence come first and the verb last, this is by no means always so. Therefore it is very necessary that the student analyze strictly every sentence which he translates. That is, he should understand exactly the relation of one word to another.

EXERCISES

1. Terram agricolae vāstant.
 2. Incolae nautās vocant.
 3. Et stellās et lūnam amāmus.
 4. Rōsās laudās.
 5. Silvam laudātis.
 6. Viās silvae puella laudāt.
 7. Sagittās non amo.
 8. Ubi est¹ rēgīna

<sup>1</sup> est, third sing. ind. of sum. Translate is.

- īnsulae? 9. Incolae terrae vāstant. 10. Fīliae nautae silvam laudant.
  11. Agricolās et nautās vocātis. 12. Sagittās agricolae laudās. 13. Silvam laudās. 14. Silvās agricolae vāstant.
- 31. 1. We love the moon and the stars. 2. We praise the farmer's daughter. 3. They lay waste the forests of the country. 4. He summons both the farmers and the sailors. 5. The inhabitants of the island are calling. 6. The farmer does not like roses. 7. Where is the star?

SECOND DECLENSION (-o-) STEMS, Continued

40. Certain peculiarities of inflection.

If e is contained in the stem as in puer, it appears in all cases. For example, gener (gen. -erī), son-in-law; presbyter (gen. -erī), elder, priest; socer (gen. -erī), father-in-law; vesper (gen. -erī), evening.

If e is not contained in the stem as in ager (gen. agrī), the nominative singular is formed by dropping the o of the stem and inserting e before r.

Nouns in -ius and -ium usually contract and form the genitive singular in -ī instead of -iī. For example, ingenium, n. character (gen. inge'nī); filius, m. son (gen filī). In such cases the genitive is accented on the penult, even when short.

Town names and a few common nouns have a locative case in -i. For example, Corinthi, at Corinth; domi, at home; humi, on the ground.

Most nouns ending in -us and -r are masculine; those ending in -um are neuter.

41. Present Indicative of the Verb sum.

Singular		Plural
sum, I am.		sumus,	we are.
es,	thou art, you are.	estis,	you are.
est, he, she, it is.		sunt,	they are.

42. RULES OF SYNTAX

- 1. A noun used with and explaining another noun, denoting the same person or thing, is called an Appositive and is said to be in apposition.
- 2. An appositive agrees with its noun in case, and, if possible, in number and gender.

Galba agricola, Galba, the farmer.

- 3. A noun connected with the subject by some form of the verb sum or other intransitive verb is called a Predicate Noun.
- 4. A predicate noun agrees in case and, whenever possible, in number and gender with the noun which it modifies.

Galba est agricola, Galba is a farmer.

43.

Lesson 6

ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS

- 46. There are two declensions of adjectives, one being a combination of the first and second declensions of nouns, the other having the terminations of the [third] declension of nouns. Adjectives of the first and second declensions have three distinct series of case-endings for the masculine, feminine, and neuter. Each series corresponds respectively to o- stems, a- stems, and neuter o- stems.
  - 47. Bonus, good; stems, bono-, bona-.

		Singular
	Masculine	Feminine	Neuter
Nom.	bonus	bona	bonum
Gen.	bonī	bonae	bonī
Dat.	bonō	bonae	bonō

Gen.	bonōrum	bonārum	bonörum
Dat.	bonīs	bonis	bonīs
Acc.	bonōs	bonās 🗸	bona
Abl.	bonīs	bonis	bonis

48. RULES OF SYNTAX

Adjectives may also be classified according to their use, as attributive or predicate.

An Attributive adjective modifies a noun directly.

bonus amicus, a good friend.

A Predicate Adjective modifies a noun by being connected with it by a verb.

fortuna caeca est, fortune is blind.

The quality of the noun expressed by the attributive adjective is taken for granted, whereas the quality expressed by the predicate adjective is specifically asserted.

All adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case.

fortissimi sunt Belgae, the Belgians are the bravest.

Lesson 8 THIRD DECLENSION

- 57. The third declension has several distinct classes of stems.1
- I. Consonant—Stems, subdivided into:
  - (a) Mute (p, b; t, d; c, g) stems.
  - (b) Liquid (l, r) stems.
  - (c) Nasal (m. n) stems.
- II. Y-stems.
- III. Mixed Stems. (Consonant stems which have taken over some of the peculiarities of the inflection of Y-stems.)

Mute-stems

58. mīles, m., soldier; stem, mīlit-. rēx, m., king; stem, rēg-.

Singular		Case-endings.

Dat.	mīlitī	rēgī	-ī
Acc.	mīlitem	rēgem	-em
Abl.	mīlite	rēge	-e

&lt;sup>1</sup> Since English words derived from Latin are generally taken from an oblique case, the stem of a Latin word may often be easily determined from a glance at its English derivative; e.g., miles (milit-ary, stem milit-); cor (cord-ial. stem cord-); caput (capit-al, stem capit-), etc.

	Plural
mīlitēs	rēgēs	-ēs

Masculine and feminine nouns with stems ending in a mute form the nominative by adding s to the stem.

capitibus

capita

-ibus

-ihns

- (a) A dental (t, d) disappears before s, as mīles, nepōs (stem, nepōt-), grandson.
- (b) A guttural (c, g) joins with s to form x, as, rex, pax (stem, pac-), beace.

The only neuters with stems ending in a mute are cor, caput, lac, milk, and Greek words like poēma (-tis), poem. In these, the nominative singular is the stem without the final consonant.

Most masculine and feminine nouns and many neuters, with stems ending in a liquid, form the nominative without the case-ending; as, consul; mulier, woman; cadaver, dead body.

Many r-stems ended originally in s, hence the nominative flös; mös, custom; aes, copper. In such words the stem readily ends in -s, but s between two vowels regularly became r. Thus, mös (gen. möris); aes (gen. aeris).

63. RULE OF SYNTAX

Place where must always be expressed by the ablative with the preposition in. Thus in castris, in the camp.

THIRD DECLENSION, Continued

74. (Y-) stems, Masculine and Feminine

Masculine and Feminine I-stems end in -is in the nominative singular, and always have -ium in the genitive plural. They have -īs or -ēs in the accusative plural, and a few, like turris, have -im in the accusative singular, and -ī in the ablative singular.

hostis	s, m., enemy; ste	em, hosti. aur	is, f., ear .

Nom.	hostēs	aurēs	-ēs
Gen.	hostium	aurium	-ium¹
Dat.	hostibus	auribus	-ibus
Acc.	hostīs (-ēs)	aurīs (-ēs)	-īs, -ēs
Abl.	hostibus	auribus	-ibus

Neuter

75. Nouns of this class end in -e, -al, or -ar in the nominative singular. They always have -e in the ablative singular, -ia in the nominative, accusative and vocative plural, and -ium in the genitive plural. Most of these words lose the final -i of the stem in the nominative singular; others retain it as -e.

mare, n., sea; stem, mari-. animal, n., animal; stem, animali-.

		Singular	•	Case-endings
Nom.	mare		animal	wanting
Gen.	maris		animālis	-is
Dat.	marī		animalī	-ī
Acc.	mare		animal	wanting
Abl.	marī		animālī	-ī

¹ Strictly speaking i-stem nouns are declined just as other nouns of the Third Declension. The i of the endings -ium (genitive plural) and -ia (nom. and acc. neuter plural) do not properly belong to the ending but to the stem.

	Plural		Case-endings
Nom.	maria ·	animālia	-ia
Gen.	marium	animātium	-ium
Dat.	maribus	animālibus	-ibus
Acc.	maria	animālia	-ia
Abl.	maribus	animālibus	-ibus

In most words of this class the final -i of the stem disappears in the nominative singular. In others it appears as -e.

RULES OF SYNTAX

- 76. The Dative is used with verbs to denote the Indirect Object. haec Galbae nuntiant, they announce these things to Galba.
- 77. The ablative is used to denote the means by which anything is accomplished.

Gladiis pugnant, they fight with swords.

GENDER IN THE THIRD DECLENSION

- 85. The following rules may be taken as general guides in determining the gender of nouns in the Third Declension.
- 1. Nouns in -er, -es, -es, -ex (gen. -icis), -ō (gen. -ōnis), -or, and -ōs are masculine.
- 2. Nouns in -ās, -is, -ō (gen. -inis), -iō, -s (preceded by a consonant), -ūs, and -x are feminine.
  - 3. Nouns in -c, -e, -l, -n, -t, -ar, -ur, and -us are neuter. There are many exceptions, however, to the foregoing rules.

RULE OF SYNTAX

86. The Ablative is used to express Cause, sometimes accompanied by a preposition. ab, dē, or ex.

Veneris praesidio ferox, bold because of the protection of Venus.

ex vulnere aeger, disabled by a wound.

&lt;sup>1</sup> The neuter of an adjective is often used as a substantive. Translate "a good thing."

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES

113. In Latin, as in English, adjectives have three degrees of comparison—the Positive, the Comparative, and the Superlative.

The Comparative is regularly formed by adding -ior (neut. -ius), the Superlative by adding -issimus (-a, -um) to the genitive singular of the Positive minus its ending.

114. Participles used as adjectives are compared in the same manner.

Positive		Comparative	Superlative
altus,	high	altior	altissimus
fortis,	brave	fortior	fortissimus
fēlīx,	happy	fēlīcior	felicissimus
amāns,	loving	amāntior	amantissimus

115. Adjectives in -er form their Comparative in the regular way, but form the Superlative by adding -rimus to the nominative of the Positive.

asper, rough	asperior	asperrimus
celer, swift	celerior	celerrimus
pulcher, beautiful	pulchrior	pulcherrimus

116. Six adjectives in -lis form the superlative by adding -limus to the genitive of the Positive minus its ending. The comparative is regular.

facilis, easy	facilior	facillimus
difficilis, difficult	difficilior	difficillimus
dissimilis, unlike	dissimilior	dissimillimus
gracilis, slender	gracilior	gracillimus
humilis, low	humilior	humillimus
similis, like	similior	simillimus

117. Other adjectives in -lis are compared regularly: as, utilis, useful, utilior, utilissimus.

RULES OF SYNTAX

118. Comparison is expressed by using quam, than, or by the ablative without quam.

nihil est amabilius quam virtus: nihil est virtūte amabilius, nothing is more attractive than virtue.

119. Superlativeness is expressed by the genitive. asperrima viarum, the roughest of the roads.

120.

FORMATION AND COMPARISON OF ADVERBS

130. Adjectives of the first and second declensions form the adverb by dropping the ending of the genitive singular and adding -ē.

Adjective. Adverb.
cārus, dear. cārē, dearly.
miser, wretched. miserē, wretchedly.
pulcher, beautiful. pulchrē, beautifully.

131. Adjectives of the third declension form the adverb by adding -ter to the stem. Stems (chiefly participles) ending in -nt drop -t before adding -ter.

Adjective. Stem. Adverb

ācer, keen ācri- ācriter, keenly fortis, brave forti- fortiter, bravely prūdēns, wise prūdent- prūdenter, wisely

132. In some adjectives the ablative singular serves as the adverb, in others the neuter accusative singular.

facilis, easy multus, much prīmus, first facile, easily multum, much prīmus, first prīmō, at first

The comparative of the adverb is the same as the neuter singular of the comparative of the adjective. To form the superlative, change the final -us of the superlative of the adjective to -ē.

Adjective	Adverb	Comparative	Superlative
cārus	cārē, dearly	cārius	cārissimē
pulcher	pulchrē, beautifully	pulchrius	pulcherrimē
bonus	bene, well	melius	optimē

DECLENSION OF NUMERAL ADJECTIVES

146. Of the Cardinals only unus, duo, tres, the hundreds above one hundred, and mille when used as a noun, are declined.

For the declension of ūnus see Lesson 16.

Duo, two, and tres, three, are declined as follows:

Nom.	duo	duae		duo
Gen.	duõrum	duārum	٠	duõrum
Dat.	duōbus	duābus		duōbus
Acc.	duōs, duo	duās		duo
Abl.	duōbus	duābus		duōbus
Nom.	trēs	tria
Gen.	trium	trium
Dat.	tribus	tribus
Acc.	trēs (trīs)	tria
Abl.	tribus	tribus

- 147. The Cardinals from four to ten, and all the tens from ten to one hundred are indeclinable. Hundreds are declined like the plural of bonus.
- 148. Mille in the singular is an indeclinable adjective. In the plural it is a noun (followed by the genitive of the objects enumerated) and is declined. Thus, mille homines, a thousand men; duo milia hominum, two thousand men (literally, two thousand of men).

PRONOUNS, Continued

Reflexive Pronouns

157. Reflexive Pronouns refer to the subject of the sentence or clause in which they stand. Thus in "I see myself," "myself" is a reflexive pronoun referring to the subject "I."

For the first and second persons of the Reflexive Pronouns, the ordinary Personal Pronouns are used.

Only the third person has a special form, and is declined as follows:

Gen. suī, of himself, herself, itself, themselves.

Dat. sibi, to himself, herself, itself, themselves.

Acc. sē or sēsē, himself, herself, itself, themselves.

Abl. se or sese, with himself, herself, itself, themselves.

The Reflexive Pronoun of the third person serves for all genders and for both numbers.

POSSESSIVE ADJECTIVES AND PRONOUNS

158. Possessive Adjectives are declined as adjectives of the first and second declensions. Thus,

First Person

Singular, meus, -a, -um, my.
Plural, noster, nostra, nostrum, our.

Second Person

Singular, tuus, -a, -um, thy, your (of one person). Plural, vester, vestra, vestrum, your (of more than one).

Third Person

Sing. and Plu., suus, -a, -um, his, her, its, their.

Suus is always reflexive as in mater liberos suos amat, the mother loves her children. Where not reflexive, his, her, its are regularly expressed by the genitive singular of is, i. e., eius; and their, by the genitive plural, eorum, earum.

Possessive Pronouns exist in Latin only when Possessive Adjectives are used substantively.

est meum, it is mine.

----------

M. and F.		N.
Nom.	quis	quid
Gen.	cūius	cūius
Dat.	cui ·	cui
Acc.	quem	quid
Abl.	quō	quō

The plural of the interrogative is the same as that of the relative.

The Interrogative Adjective quī, quae, quod, what? what kind of? is declined exactly as the Relative Pronoun.

RULE OF SYNTAX

173. A relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender and number; but its case is determined by its construction in the clause in which it stands.

pallium quō amictus est, the cloak with which he was covered. oppida quae oppugnāmus, the towns which we attack.

Lesson 31

CONJUGATION

183. The inflection of the verb is called Conjugation. There are four conjugations, distinguished by the first vowel of the ending of the Present Infinitive Active. Thus,

Conjugation	Infinitive Ending	Distinguishing Vowel
$\mathbf{I}_{\cdot}$	-āre	ā
II	-ēre	ē
III	-ĕre	ĕ
IV	-īre	ī

By the inflection of the verb is expressed Voice, Mood, Tense, Number, and Person.

184. There are two voices, Active and Passive. The Active Voice shows the subject as acting or being; thus, amo, I love; sum, I am.

The Passive Voice shows the subject as acted upon; thus laudamur, we are praised.

- 185. There are three Moods—Indicative, Subjunctive, and Imperative.
- (a) The Indicative Mood states a fact, or inquires about a fact. Thus, moneo. I advise: quid mones, what do you advise?
  - (b) For the force of the Subjunctive Mood, see p. 153.
  - (c) The Imperative Mood is used in commands, entreaties, etc.
- 186. There are six Tenses—Present, Imperfect, Future, Perfect, Pluperfect, Future Perfect, which correspond respectively to the English Present, Past, Future, Present, Perfect, Past Perfect, Future Perfect.

The Subjunctive, however, lacks the Future and Future Perfect, and the Imperative uses only the Present and Future.

- 187. There are two numbers—Singular and Plural.
- 188. There are three persons—First, Second, and Third,
- 189. These make up the forms of the three moods, or the so-called Finite Verb. Besides these forms there are the Infinitives, the Supines, and the Gerund, which are verbal nouns, and the Participles (including the Gerundive), which are verbal adjectives.
- 190. Transitive and Intransitive Verbs. Verbs that take a direct object are Transitive Verbs; thus cos amamus, we love them. Other verbs are Intransitive; thus manemus, we remain.
  - 191. The Principal Parts of a verb are:
  - (1) The First Person Singular of the Present Indicative Active.
  - (2) The Present Infinitive Active.
  - (3) The First Person Singular of the Perfect Indicative Active.
- (4) The Nominative Singular Masculine of the Perfect Passive Participle.

The Principal Parts of a verb are so called because from them the full conjugation of the verb may be derived.

CONJUGATION OF SUM

192. The conjugation of the irregular verb sum is given first because it enters into the conjugation of other verbs.

IMPERSONAL VERBS

307. Impersonal Verbs in Latin correspond to the English Impersonal with "it." Thus, licet, it is lawful; oportet, it is fitting. These verbs never have a personal subject, but may take an Infinitive, a Clause, or a Neuter Pronoun. Thus hōc fierī oportet, it is necessary that this be done; hōc decet, this is fitting. They are conjugated like other verbs, but are used only in the third person singular of the Indicative and Subjunctive, and in the Present and Perfect Infinitive.

308. Some of these verbs are:

accidit	accidere	accidit	it happened
decet	decēre	decuit	it becomes licet	licēre	licuit	it is permitted
miseret	miserēre	miseritum est	it excites pity oportet	oportēre	oportuit	it is fitting paenitet	paenitēre	paenituit	it causes regret

The passive voice of some intransitive verbs is used impersonally. Thus, curritur	lit. it is run	people run

pugnātum est	lit. it was fought	the battle was fought ventum est	lit. it has been come	people have come vivitur	lit. it is lived	people live.

PART II.—SYNTAX

CASES, GENERAL REMARKS AND REVIEW

Latin differs especially from English in what are called its cases.

The case of a noun or adjective is such a change in form as marks its relation to other words in a sentence. The English language no longer possesses a case-system, but the remnants of one may be seen in the strictly possessive case, John's hat, etc., and in certain pronouns: he, him; who, whose, whom, etc. German, however, still preserves its case-system.

In Latin the order of the words gives us little or no information as to the relation of a noun to the rest of the sentence. The exact relation or syntax of a noun is marked by its case. However, the number of cases in Latin is really only six, and since this number is far too small to express the number of relations which the language must describe, Latin also makes use of many prepositions.

The Nominative and Vocative Cases.

In general, the Nominative case may be said to indicate the subject of the verb. Without such a subject, expressed or understood, the verb is meaningless. Impersonal verbs alone approximate the idea of verbal action without a subject; e.g., curritur, there is running.

The uses of the Nominative may be defined in greater detail as follows:

313. The Subject of a Finite Verb (any form of the Indicative, Subjunctive, or Imperative) is in the Nominative Case.

Cicero scripsit, Cicero wrote.

314. A noun used with, and explaining, another noun, denoting the same person or thing, is called an Appositive and is said to be in Apposition.

An Appositive agrees with its noun or pronoun in case, and, if possible, in number and gender.

assentātiō adiūtrīx vitiōrum, flattery, the promoter of evils.

- P. Scīpiō, pontifex maximus, Publius Scipio, pontifex maximus. historia, magistra vītae, history, the teacher of life.
- 315. A noun connected with the subject by some form of the verb sum or other intransitive verb is called a Predicate Noun.

A Predicate Noun agrees in case and, whenever possible, in number and gender with the noun which it modifies.

vīta rūstica parsimōniae magistra est, country life is the teacher of thrift consules creantur Caesar et Servilius, Caesar and Servilius are elected consuls.

316. The Vocative Case is the case of address, and is the same as the nominative except in the second declension, where it usually ends in -e.

crēdite mihi, iūdices, believe me, judges.
nāte, mea magna potentia solus, my son, thou alone my great power.

GENITIVE CASE

320. The Genitive is used to complete or limit the meaning of nouns, adjectives, verbs, and adverbs. Its most important uses may be classified as follows:

Genitive of Possession

321. The Genitive of Possession is used to denote ownership.

potentia Pompei, Pompey's power. domus Ciceronis, Cicero's house.

Subjective Genitive

322. The Subjective Genitive denotes the subject of an action implied in a noun.

Caesaris adventus, the arrival of Caesar. timores liberorum, the fears of the children.

Objective Genitive

323. The Objective Genitive denotes the object of an action implied in a noun or an adjective.

cupido gloriae, desire for glory. cupidus rerum novarum, desirous of a revolution.

Genitive of the Whole

324. The Genitive of the Whole denotes the whole from which a part is taken. The part may be expressed by a noun, adjective, or adverb.

eōrum ūna pars, one part of them. plūs auctōritātis, more authority.

satis eloquentiae, sapientiae parum, enough eloquence, too little

Genitive of Material

325. The Genitive of Material denotes that of which something consists or is made. Strictly speaking it is a genitive of the whole.

talentum aurī, a talent of gold. acervus frūmentī, a pile of grain.

Appositional Genitive

326. The Genitive is sometimes used to define a word of general meaning. This is called the Appositional Genitive.

Troiae urbem, the city (of) Troy.

nomen amicitiae, the name (of) friendship.

Genitive of Quality or Description

327. The Genitive is sometimes used with a noun to denote a quality of that noun. This is known as the Genitive of Quality or Description.

vir magnae virtūtis, a man of great virtue. adulēscēns nullīus consilii, a youth of no judgment.

Genitive of Specification

328. The Genitive of Specification is used with a few nouns and many adjectives to denote that with reference to which a quality exists.

praestantia virtūtis, preeminence in virtue. ferōcēs linguae, bold of tongue. perītus bellī, skilled in war.

329.

VOCABULARY

GENITIVE CASE, Continued

Genitive of Charge or Penalty

332. Verbs of accusing, condemning, and acquitting take a genitive of the charge.

accusatus est proditionis, he was accused of treason. capitis condemnari, to be condemned to death.

Genitive with "interest"

333. With interest the person or thing concerned is denoted by the Genitive. If, however, the person concerned is expressed in English by a pronoun, the Latin uses the ablative singular feminine of the corresponding possessive adjective, i.e., meā, tuā, nostrā, vestrā, or suā.

patris interest, it concerns the father. meā interest, it concerns me.

Genitive with Verbs of Plenty or Want

334. The genitive is sometimes used with verbs, as it is with adjectives meaning plenty or want.

implentur Bacchī, they are filling themselves with wine. egeō cōnsilī, I need advice.

Verbs of Remembering, Forgetting, or Reminding.

- 335. Memini and reminiscor, when they mean to be mindful of; memini, meaning to mention; and obliviscor, meaning to be unmindful of, take the genitive.
- 336. Memini and reminiscor, meaning literally to remember, to retain in mind, and obliviviscor, meaning literally to forget, take the accusative.

animus praeteritorum meminit, the mind remembers the past.

Achillem, cūius suprā meminimus, Achilles, whom I mentioned above.

Cinnam meminī, I remember Cinna.

totam causam oblitus est, he forgot the whole case.

Genitive with Impersonal Verbs

337. The impersonal verbs miseret, it rouses pity; paenitet, it causes regret; piget, it disgusts; pudet, it shames; and taedet, it wearies, take the accusative of the person affected, and the genitive of the cause of the feeling.

pudet mē tuī, I am ashamed of you. eōrum nōs miseret, we pity them.

DATIVE CASE

The Dative is usually used either to denote an indirect object or a person or thing interested in the action of the verb.

Its various uses may be classified as follows:

Indirect Object with Transitive Verbs

341. Transitive verbs take the accusative of the Direct Object and the dative of the Indirect Object.

rēgī haec dīcite, tell the king this.
hanc pecūniam mihi dat, he gives me this money,

Indirect Object with Intransitive Verbs

342. Many intransitive verbs take the dative, especially those signifying favor, help, injure, please, displease, trust, distrust, command, obey, serve, resist, indulge, spare, pardon, envy, threaten, believe, persuade, and the like.

amīcīs confido, I trust my friends.

huic legioni Caesar et indulserat et confidebat, Caesar had indulged this legion and had confidence in it.

Indirect Object with Compound Verbs

343. The Dative of the Indirect Object is used with many verbs compounded with ad, ante, circum, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, sub, and super.

finitimis bellum inferre, to make war on one's neighbors. exercitui praefuit, he was in command of the army.

DATIVE CASE, Continued

Dative of Reference

consurrexerunt omnes illi, all rose in his honor.

interclūdere hostibus commeātum, to cut off the supplies of the enemy.

Dative of Possession

348. The dative is used with forms of sum to denote the possessor. tibi est liber, you have a book (lit., a book is to you).

controversia mihi fuit cum avunculo tuo, I had a debate with your uncle.

Dative of Agent

349. The dative is used with the gerundive to express the agent. haec nobis agenda sunt, these things must be done by us. mihi eundum est, I must go.

Dative of Purpose or Tendency

350. The dative is often used to express the purpose or tendency of an action. This is often used with another dative (Reference), denoting the person concerned.

cecinit receptui, he gave the signal for a retreat.

id müneri misit, he sent it as a present.

nobis sunt odio, they are an object of hatred to us (literally, they are as a hatred to us).

Dative with Adjectives

The cavalry was not a great service to us here.

Lesson 64

ACCUSATIVE CASE

The Accusative is usually used to complete the meaning of a transitive verb by denoting the immediate object of its action. It has several varying uses, however, all of which may be arranged as follows:

Direct Object

355. The Direct Object of a verb is in the accusative case. It may denote that which is produced or that which is affected.

librum scripsit, he wrote a book.

oppida sua omnia incendunt, they burn all their towns.

Accusative of Exclamation

356. The accusative is used in exclamations.

mē miserum! wretched me! testīs ēgregiōs! fine witnesses!

Two Accusatives. Direct Object and Predicate Accusative.

357. Verbs meaning to make, choose, call, show, etc., may take two accusatives, one the direct object, the other a predicate accusative.

Hamilcarem imperātōrem fēcērunt, they made Hamilcar general. ducem sē praebuit, he offered himself leader.

358. A predicate accusative may be an adjective as well as a noun.

hostes hoe iter periculosum reddiderant, the enemy had made this road dangerous.

359. VOCABULARY

alacer, cris, cre, eager. dictātor, ōris, m., dictator. efficiō, cre, fēcī, fectus, make, render. ēgregius, a, um, excellent, eminent.

ACCUSATIVE CASE, Continued

Two Accusatives. Person and Thing

362. Some verbs meaning to ask, demand, teach, conceal, etc., take two accusatives, one of the Person, the other of the Thing.

mē sententiam rogāvit, he asked me my opinion. tē litterās doceō, I teach you the letters. iter omnēs cēlat, he conceals his march from everyone.

Two Accusatives With Compound Verbs

363. Verbs compounded with circum or trans may take two accusatives, one depending on the verb, the other on the preposition.

eos sua praesidia circumduxit, he led them around his fortifications. flumen exercitum traduxit, he led his army across the river.

Accusative of Limit of Motion

364. The limit of motion is expressed by the accusative with a preposition.

lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittunt, they send envoys to Caesar. ad Italiam vēnit, he came to Italy.

365. With names of towns; small islands; domum, home; domos, homes; and rus, country, the preposition is regularly omitted.

rus ībō, I shall go to the country. domōs suās discēdunt, they scatter to their homes. Rōmam contendit, he hastens to Rome.

Accusative of Extent

366. Extent of time or space is regularly expressed by the accusative. quadrāgintā annōs vīxit, he lived for forty years. fossae quīndecim pedes lātae, trenches fifteen feet wide.

367.

Lesson 66

ABLATIVE CASE

370. The Ablative has the functions of three originally distinct cases—the true Ablative or from-case, the Instrumental or with-case, and the Locative or place-where-case.

It gives additional information about the mode of the action of the verb, in addition to those presented by the direct and indirect object. Its sphere of action is very great, since it can express the source, cause, instrument, time, place, manner, circumstances, of the action of the verb, as well as the point from which motion takes place.

We may detail the uses of the Ablative as follows:

TRUE ABLATIVE USES

Ablative of Separation

371. Verbs or adjectives denoting separation take the ablative with or without a preposition. The preposition is usually omitted with words of freeing, depriving, and lacking.

të ab eö līberō, I free you from him. oppugnātione desistunt, they cease from the siege. omnibus rēbus ēgēre, to be in want of everything.

Ablative of Agent

372. The personal agent with a passive verb is expressed by the ablative with a or ab.

ab senātū amīcus appellātus erat, he had been called friend by the senate.

a Caesare accūsātus est, he was accused by Caesar.

Ablative of Comparison

373. Comparative adjectives are regularly followed by quam and a substantive in the same case as the first thing compared. However, the second thing compared may be put in the ablative and the quam omitted.

nihil est virtūte amābilius, nothing is more lovely than virtue. patria mihi vītā cārior est, to me my fatherland is dearer than life.

374. The comparatives plūs, minus, amplius, and longius may take the ablative, but they usually have the force of plūs quam, minus quam, amplius quam, and longius quam.

tēcum plūs annum vīxit, he lived with you more than a year.

Ablative of Cause<sup>1</sup>

375. The Ablative is used to denote Cause. The Ablative of Cause is sometimes used with a preposition, ab, dē, or ex.

ille timore, ego rīsū corruī, he collapsed from fear, I from laughter. multa gloriae cupiditāte fēcit, he did many things because of his love of glory.

ab īrā, on account of anger.

Ablative Absolute

387. Two words in the ablative, usually a noun or pronoun and a participle, are often used in a loose connection with a sentence to express any one of a number of ideas.

Two nouns or an adjective and a noun may also be used in the ablative absolute construction.

- 388. The main ideas expressed by the Ablative Absolute are the following:
  - (a) Time.

Lepido et Tullo consulibus, when Lepidus and Tullus were consuls or in the consulship of Lepidus and Tullus.

(b) Cause.

nullo adversante regnum obtinuit, since no one opposed him, he secured the throne.

(c) Manner.

incitātō equō sē hostibus obtulit, with his horse at full speed he rushed upon the enemy.

(d) Condition.

omnes virtūtēs iacent, voluptāte dominante, all virtues lie prostrate, if pleasure reigns supreme.

(e) Concession.

perditis omnibus rēbus pugnābant, although everything was lost, they fought on.

Ablative of Price

389. The ablative is used with verbs of buying and selling to denote the price.

denāriis tribus aestimāvit, he valued it at three denarii.

Ablative of Degree of Difference

390. The ablative is used with comparatives and words implying comparison to show the degree of difference.

LOCATIVE USES

Ablative of Place

396. The place where a thing is or is done is usually expressed by the ablative with in.

in urbe habitat, he lives in the city.

Names of towns, however—except singulars of the First and Second Declensions take the ablative without a preposition.

Cūmīs, at Cumae. Carthagine, at Carthage.

397. Place from which is regularly expressed by the ablative with the preposition ab, de, or ex.<sup>1</sup>

ab Italia profectus est, he set out from Italy.

Names of towns, however; domo, from home, rure, from the country, use the ablative without a preposition.

Calibus profectus est, he set out from Cales.

Ablative of Time

398. The time when or within which anything takes place is expressed by the ablative.

superiore aestate, in the previous summer. proximis comitis, at the last election.

399. Extent of time is sometimes expressed by the ablative. The accusative is usual, however.

tota nocte ierunt, they went during the whole night.

Locative Case

400. The Locative Case denotes place where. It occurs regularly in the singular names of towns and small islands of the First and Second Declensions, and also in a few special words, like domī, at home; humī, on the ground; bellī and militiae, in war; rurī, in the country.

Romae, at Rome, Corinthi, at Corinth.

nostri, our men.

varium et mutabile semper femina, woman is alawys a variable and changeable thing.

bona, good things.

405. Adjectives are often used where English uses the adverb.

invītus fēcī, I did it unwillingly.

Comparatives and Superlatives

406. Comparatives and Superlatives are often used when they do not denote a definite comparison; the comparative having the idea of rather somewhat, too; the superlative signifying very.

senectūs est nātūrā loquācior, old age is by nature rather talkative. vir fortissimus, a very brave man.

407. The superlative is used with quam, or quam and a form of possum, to denote the highest degree possible.

quam mătūrrimē, as early as possible.

quam maximis potest itineribus in Galliam contendit, he hastens into Gaul by the longest possible marches.

408. When two qualities are compared, both adjectives or adverbs are in the comparative, or, if magis is used, both are kept in the positive.

verior quam grātior, more true than agreeable.

Celer disertus magis est quam sapiens, Celer is more eloquent than wise.

409. Certain adjectives are used in agreement to denote a part of an object: as medius, middle of; reliquus, rest of; extrêmus, last part of; imus, bottom of; summus, top of.

summus mons, the top of the mountain. in colle medio, on the middle of the hill.

Lesson 71

SYNTAX OF PRONOUNS

414. The ending of the verb denotes the person. Therefore personal pronouns are expressed as subjects of verbs only in case of emphasis or contrast.

ego rēgēs ēiēcī, võs tyrannös introducitis, I drove out kings, you are bringing in tyrants.

- 415. The genitive singular of the personal pronouns (i.e., meī, tuī) and of the reflexive (i.e., suī) is usually used as an objective genitive. The possessive adjectives meus, tuus, and suus are regularly used instead of the possessive genitive.
- 416. The genitives plural nostri and vestri are used only as objective genitives; the forms nostrum and vestrum as genitives of the whole.

habētis ducem memorem vestrī, oblītum suī, you have a leader mindful of you, forgetful of himself.

nēmō vestrum, no one of you.

417. The possessive adjectives (commonly called pronouns) are usually used only for the purpose of clearness.

mātrem amō, I love my mother. tuam mātrem amō, I love your mother.

Alius and Alter

418. Alius means another of a group of more than two. Alter means either one or the other of two, or the second in a series.

The phrases alius . . . alius, and alter . . . alter are used correlatively, meaning respectively one . . . another, the one . . . the other.

The plural alii . . . alii is translated some . . . others.

dīvitiās aliī praeponunt, aliī potentiam, some prefer wealth, others power.

One has been killed, the other has been freed. 8. On that very night this captive fled to his own (people).

Lesson 72 GENERAL REMARKS ON MOODS

By a mood is meant a special form assumed by the verb to indicate the particular shade of thought that an author wishes to convey to his readers, or a speaker to his hearers.

- I. Thus the indicative mood, as its name implies, is used to point out (indicat) a fact, stated by the author on his own responsibility. The fact is, was, or shall be true in itself, whether anyone ever notices it or not; e.g., he is well, he was well, he will be well.
- II. The imperative mood is used not to point out a fact, but to command or will a fact; e.g., go ye.
- III. The difference between these two moods is clear. The infinitive mood is hardly a mood at all, but rather the verb used as a noun, e.g., vidēre, the act of seeing. In Latin, however, it is very widely used as the mood of indirect discourse.

IV. The subjunctive is the mood which causes the most trouble in the study of Latin. In Latin it has many varied uses, while in English it hardly exists at all.

Thus in Latin the subjunctive is used not to point out a fact, but to add to the simple statement of the indicative some further idea of uncertainty or possibility. In general it is used to express something which we regard as a mere conception of the mind, such as

- (a) That which we purpose or wish to be a fact.
- (b) That which we refer to as the result of another fact.
- (c) That which we state on authority other than our own.

It should be remembered that conjunctions do not govern mood. The choice of the mood should be made chiefly on a consideration of the sense of the passage, and not because of the presence of certain conjunctions.

All the many uses of the subjunctive which will follow may be summed up under the foregoing three general heads.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD IN INDEPENDENT SENTENCES Hortatory Subjunctive

 $422. \ \ \,$  The subjunctive is used to express an exhortation. The negative is  $n\overline{\textbf{e}}.$

amēmus patriam, let us love our fatherland. nē eāmus, let us not go.

Deliberative Subjunctive

423. The subjunctive is used in questions of a purely rhetorical nature, implying the impossibility of the thing mentioned and expecting no answer. The present tense is used for present time, the imperfect, rarely the perfect, for past time. The negative is non.

quid igitur faciam? what then shall I do? quid facerem? what was I to do? ego non venirem? was I not to come?

Continued

Optative Subjunctive

427. The subjunctive is used to express a wish. The negative is nē. The present tense is used where the wish is represented as possible, i.e., in future time; the imperfect for a wish unattained in present time; and the pluperfect for a wish unattained in past time.

The present tense may be preceded by utinam; the imperfect and pluperfect are regularly preceded by utinam: (utinam) sint beātī, may they be blessed.

utinam Clodius viveret, would that Clodius were alive. utinam ne venisset, would that he had not come.

Potential Subjunctive

428. The potential subjunctive is used to express ideas set forth by English may, should or would; i.e., possibilities, softened assertions, etc. The negative is non.

The present and perfect denote a present or future possibility; the imperfect a past possibility.

hoc võbīs incrēdibile videātur, this may seem to you incredible. nõn facile dixerim, I could not easily say.

TENSES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE IN SUBORDINATE CLAUSES 437. Sequence of Tenses

The use of the various tenses of the subjunctive in independent sentences has been given under each of the different kinds of independent subjunctives.

The use of the tenses of the subjunctive in subordinate clauses depends on the following laws known as Sequence of Tenses. The tenses of the indicative and subjunctive are divided into two classes; primary or principal, and secondary or historical.

Under primary or principal tenses come the present, future, present perfect, and future perfect indicative; and the present and perfect subjunctive.

Under secondary or historical are the imperfect, historical perfect, and pluperfect indicative; and the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive.

Note that the perfect indicative has two uses, as a present perfect denoting action just completed in present time; and as a historical perfect denoting definite past action.

In subordinate clauses which take the subjunctive, only primary tenses may follow primary tenses in the main clause; and only secondary tenses may follow secondary tenses in the main clause.

The present and imperfect subjunctive denote incomplete action, the perfect and pluperfect completed action, just as in the indicative.

438. Thus indirect questions always take the subjunctive in Latin, and the various rules of Sequence of Tenses are illustrated by the following examples.

Primary or Principal Sequence

- (a) Incomplete Action in the Subordinate Clause.
  rogō quid faciās, I ask what you are doing.
  rogābō quid faciās, I shall ask what you are doing.
  rogāverō quid faciās, I shall have asked what you are doing.
- (b) Completed Action in the Subordinate Clause.
  rogō quid fēcerīs, I ask what you have done.
  rogābō quid fēceris, I shall ask what you have done.
  rogāverō quid fēcerīs, I shall have asked what you have done.

Secondary or Historical Clause

- (a) Incomplete Action in the Subordinate Clause. rogābam quid facerēs, I asked what you were doing. rogāvī quid facērēs, I asked what you were doing. rogāveram quid facerēs, I had asked what you were doing.
- (b) Completed Action in the Subordinate Clause. rogābam quid fēcissēs, I asked what you had done. rogāvī quid fēcissēs, I asked what you had done. rogāveram quid fēcissēs, I had asked what you had done.

Lesson 76

CLAUSES OF PURPOSE

442. Purpose is usually expressed by a subjunctive clause introduced by ut if affirmative, by ne if negative.

The rules of sequence of tenses are followed strictly as in all subordinate subjunctive clauses.

oportet ësse, ut vivas, non vivere ut edas, you should eat, that you may live, not live that you may eat.

portās clausit, nē quam oppidāni iniūriam acciperent, he closed the gate, in order that the townspeople might not receive any injury.

443. The subjunctive is used in relative clauses to express purpose.

lēgātum mittit, quī Caesarem videat, he sends his lieutenant to see Caesar.

habebam quo confugerem, I had a place where I could take refuge.

444. When a purpose clause contains an adjective or adverb in the comparative degree, it is always introduced by quō.

adiūtā mē, quō id fiāt facilius, help me in order that this may be done more easily.

RELATIVE CLAUSES OF CHARACTERISTIC.—CAUSAL CLAUSES

Clauses of Characteristic

445. When the antecedent of a relative pronoun is indefinite, and the clause expresses some quality or characteristic of it, the subjunctive is used.

secutae sunt tempestates quae nostros in eastris continerent, storms followed which kept our men in camp.

446. The Clauses of Characteristic are used especially after such words and phrases as tālis, sōlus, dignus, indignus, sunt quī, nemo est qui, unus est qui, etc.

sunt qui dicant, there are those who say.

ūnus est sõlus inventus qui dissideret, only one man was found who disagreed.

Causal Clauses

447. Clauses introduced by quod, quia, and quoniam, because, take the indicative if the reason is given as a fact and on the authority of the writer or speaker himself; if not given as a fact or given on the authority of some one else, the subjunctive is used.

quia nătūra mūtārī non potest, ideireo vērae amīcitiae sempiternae sunt, because nature cannot change, therefore true friendships are everlasting.

noctū ambulābat in pūblicō Themistoclēs quod somnum capere nōn posset, Themistocles used to walk in public at night, because (he said) he could not get to sleep.

448. Cum meaning since takes the subjunctive.

Haeduī cum sē dēfendere non possent, lēgātos ad Caesarem mittunt, since the Haedui could not defend themselves, they sent deputies to Caesar.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES

Temporal Clauses with cum

458. Cum, meaning when, takes the indicative if the clause refers to present or future time.

Römae videor esse cum tuās litterās legō, I seem to be in Rome when I read your letter.

459. When cum, meaning when, refers to past time, the indicative is used when the time is merely defined; but the subjunctive is used when some circumstance connected with it is stated.

The difference is the same as that between the relative clause of fact and the relative clause of characteristic.

This distinction, however, is not always followed strictly by Roman writers.

eō cum veniō, praetor quiescēbat, when I got there, the praetor was resting.

cum inambulārem in xystō, ad mē Brūtus venit, while I was walking in the portico, Brutus came to me.

Temporal Clauses with postquam, ubi, etc.

460. Postquam, after; ubi, ut, when; and simul ac (simul atque), cum primum, as soon as, referring to a past occurrence, take the indicative, usually the perfect.

postquam Caesar pervēnit, obsidēs poposcit, after Caesar arrived, he demanded hostages.

simul atque introductus est, rem confecit, as soon as he was brought in, he finished the affair.

SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES

469. A Substantive Clause is one which is used as a noun. As a noun it may be used in any case, although its use as either the subject or object of a verb is most common.

SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES WITH VERB IN INDICATIVE

470. Quod, meaning that or the fact that, introduces the only common substantive clause with the verb in the indicative.

accidit perincommode quod eum nüsquam vidisti, it happened very unfortunately that you did not see him anywhere.

SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES WITH VERB IN SUBJUNCTIVE

471. Clauses with the subjunctive are used as objects of verbs meaning to command, induce, advise, ask, allow, decide, strive, accomplish, etc. The connective is ut or nē.

petō quaesōque ut tuōs mēcum servēs, I ask and beg that you save your friends together with me.

472. Verbs of hindering are followed by the subjunctive in a substantive clause introduced by nē, quīn, or quōminus.

prohibuit quominus in unum coiremus, he kept us from coming together.

impedior në plura dicam, I am prevented from saying more.

473. Expressions of doubting or ignorance with a negative expressed or implied take a substantive clause with the subjunctive introduced by 'quīn. The most common expressions of this kind are, non dubito, non dubium est, quis dubitat, quis ignorat, etc.

quis ignorat quin tria Graecorum genera sint? who does not know that there are three kinds of Greeks?

non dubitat quin brevi sit Troia peritura, he does not doubt that Troy is soon to fall.

Lesson 83

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES

487. A Conditional Sentence has two parts, the Protasis or condition, and the Apodosis or conclusion. The Protasis or condition is regularly introduced by sī, if: nisi, unless; or sīn, but if.

There are three kinds of conditions, used as follows:

488.

SIMPLE CONDITIONS

Simple Conditions merely state a case, and imply nothing as to its reality or fulfilment. They may be in present, past, or future time, and have in each case the proper tense of the indicative.

sī hōc facis, bene est, if you do this, it is well.

sī hōc facies, bene erit, if you do this (lit., if you will do this) it will be well. (Sometimes called future more vivid.)

sī hoc fēcistī, bene fuit, if you did this, it was well.

489. CONDITIONS OF POSSIBILITY

The Condition of Possibility states a case as being possible in some future time. The verbs in both parts of the sentence are in the subjunctive and are usually translated with the auxiliaries should and would respectively.

sī deus tē interroget, quid respondeās? if a god should ask you, what would you answer?

sī hōc faciās, bene sit, if you should do this, it would be well.

490. CONDITIONS CONTRARY TO FACT

Conditions Contrary to Fact state situations which do not exist. The subjunctive is used in both clauses, the imperfect for a contrary to fact condition in present time, the pluperfect for a contrary to fact condition in past time.

sī hōc facerēs, benė esset, if you did this, it would be well.

sī amicus meus adesset, gaudērem, if my friend were present, I would rejoice.

sī hōc fecisses, bene fuisset, if you had done this, it would have been well.

nisi tū amīsissēs, numquam recēpissem, unless you had lost it, I would never have found it.

If my authority had not been uncertain, I would have received more honor. 5. If a general commands, the soldier obeys. 6. If the soldiers are brave, there is always hope of victory. 7. If the leader fortifies the town well, no one will be afraid. 8. If he were brave, he would talk less.

Lesson 84

INDIRECT DISCOURSE (Orātiō Oblīqua).

- 494. The words or thoughts of a person may be given directly (direct discourse), just as he spoke or thought, or they may be given indirectly (indirect discourse), in the words of some one else.
- 495. When given indirectly, the words or thoughts of a person depend or are the object of some verb of saying, thinking, knowing, perceiving, etc.

Thus we have Direct Discourse in, Caesar said, "The die is cast"; but Indirect Discourse in, Caesar said that the die was cast.

496. In Latin, declarative sentences in Indirect Discourse change their main clause to the infinitive with a subject accusative, and all subordinate clauses take the subjunctive.

DIRECT DISCOURSE

sī iterum experīrī volunt, parātus sum dēcertāre, if they wish to try again, I am ready to fight it out.

INDIRECT DISCOURSE

Ariovistus respondit, sī iterum experīrī velint, sē parātum esse dēcertāre, Ariovistus replied that if they wished to try again, he was ready to fight it out.

TENSES OF INFINITIVE IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE

- 497. Tenses of the infinitive in indirect discourse denote time not by themselves but with reference to the verb on which they depend.
- (a) The present infinitive denotes the same time as that of the verb on which it depends.

dīcit sē laborāre, he says that he is working.
dīxit sē laborāre, he said that he was working.

(b) The perfect infinitive denotes time previous to that of the verb on which it depends.

dīcit sē labōrāvisse, he says that he has worked. dīxit sē labōrāvisse, he said that he had worked.

(c) The future infinitive denotes time after that of the verb on which it depends.

dīcit sē labōrātūrum esse, he says that he will work. dīxit sē labōrātūrum esse, he said that he would work.

TENSES OF SUBJUNCTIVE IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE

498. The tenses of the subjunctive in subordinate clauses in indirect discourse follow the regular principles of Sequence of Tenses.

dicunt se legatos videre, qui adfuerint, they say that they saw the ambassadors who were present.

dīxērunt sē lēgātōs vidēre, quī adfuissent, they said that they saw the ambassadors who had been present.

Lesson 85

THE INFINITIVE '

502. The infinitive is used as the subject of est and various impersonal verbs. When so used, the infinitive may have a subject accusative and may take a predicate noun or adjective.

longum est ea dicere, the telling of these things is a long story.

eos hoc nomine appellari fas est, it is right that they be called by this name.

503. The infinitive without the subject accusative is used as the object of many verbs, to complete their meaning. These are known as Complementary Infinitives. The most common verbs which take this infinitive are volō, mālō, nōlō; debeō, ought; audeō, dare; and statuō, decide.

bellum cum Germanis gerere constituit, he decided to wage war with the Germans

- 504. The infinitive with the subject accusative is used as the object of many verbs;
- (a) Verbs meaning to say, think, know, perceive. This is the regular construction of principal clauses in indirect discourse. See previous lesson.
- (b) Verbs meaning to order, compel, forbid, permit, or teach. The verbs iubeo, I order, and veto, I forbid, are very common.

tertiam aciem castra munire iussit, he ordered the men of the third line to fortify the camp.

The general had decided to storm the town on the march.

Lesson 86 PARTICIPLES

508. Participles are verbal adjectives. As adjectives, they modify nouns and agree with them in gender, number, and case. As verbs, they have voice and tense, and govern cases.

TENSE OF PARTICIPLES

509. A participle denotes time with reference to that of the verb in its own clause.

The present participle denotes an action as going on at the time of the action of the verb.

pugnāns occīditur, he is killed while fighting. audiēbam tē loquentem, I heard you speaking.

The perfect participle shows an action already completed at the time of the action of the verb.

audītus, sedeō, having been heard, I sit down. audītus sēdī, having been heard, I sat down. audītus sedēbō, having been heard, I will sit down.

USE OF PARTICIPLES

Participles are often equivalent to an English subordinate clause, expressing a variety of relations, such as time, cause, means, manner, condition, etc.

longius prosequi veritus, ad Ciceronem pervenit, because he feared to follow further, he came to Cicero. (Cause.)

flentes implorabant, they begged with tears. (Manner).

mente ūtī non possumus, cibo et potione completi, if filled with food and drink, we cannot use our mind. (Condition.)

The perfect participle often expresses an idea which in English would be put in a coordinate clause.

multõs vīcõs captõs incendit, he captured and burned many villages (lit., he burned many villages captured).

510.

Lesson 87

GERUND AND GERUNDIVE

513. The Gerund is a verbal noun. As a verb it governs cases, and as a noun it itself may be used in the constructions of the genitive, dative, accusative, and ablative cases. In form, it is the neuter singular of the future passive participle.

ars vivendi, the art of living.

studiosus tē audiendī, desirous of hearing you.

mēns discendō alitur, the mind is nourished by learning.

514. The Gerundive is a verbal adjective. As a verb it governs cases, and as an adjective it agrees in gender, number, and case with the noun it modifies. In form, it is the singular and plural of all genders of the future passive participle.

initia sunt eonsilia urbis delendae, plans have been formed for destroying the city.

dies rogationi ferendae, the day for proposing the measure.

515. Either the gerund or gerundive construction may usually be used to express the same idea.

cupidus poetam audiendī, desirous of hearing the poet (Gerund). cupidus poetae audiendī, desirous of hearing the poet (Gerundive). dēlector ōrātōrēs legendō, I am delighted with reading the orators (Gerund).

delector  $\bar{o}$ ratoribus legendis, I am delighted with reading the orators (Gerundive).

PRINCIPAL RULES OF SYNTAX

- 1. The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative case.
- 2. A noun used with and explaining another noun, denoting the same person or thing, is called an appositive, and is said to be in apposition.
- 3. An appositive agrees with its noun or pronoun in case, and, if possible, in number and gender.
- 4. A noun connected with the subject by some form of the verb sum or other intransitive verb is called a predicate noun.
- 5. A predicate noun agrees in case and, whenever possible, in number and gender, with the noun which it modifies.
- 6. The vocative case is the case of address, and is the same as the nominative except in the second declension, when it usually ends in -e.
  - 7. The genitive of possession is used to denote ownership.
- 8. The subjective genitive denotes the person who does the act indicated by the noun on which it depends.
- 9. The objective genitive denotes the object of an action implied in a noun or an adjective.
- 10. The genitive of the whole denotes the whole from which a part is taken.
- 11. The appositional genitive is used to define a word of general meaning.
- 12. The genitive of quality is used with a noun to denote a quality of that noun.
- 13. The genitive of specification is used with a few nouns and many adjectives to denote that with reference to which a quality exists.
- 14. Verbs of accusing, condemning, and acquitting take a genitive of the charge.
- 15. With interest the person or thing concerned is denoted by the genitive. If, however, the person concerned is expressed in English by a pronoun, the Latin uses the ablative singular feminine of the corresponding possessive adjective.
- 16. The genitive is sometimes used with verbs and adjectives, meaning plenty or want.
- 17. Memini and reminiscor, when they mean to be mindful of; memini, meaning to mention, and obliviscor, meaning to be unmindful of, take the genitive.
- 18. Memini and reminiscor, meaning literally to remember, to retain in mind, and obliviscor, meaning literally to forget, take the accusative.
  - 19. The impersonal verbs miseret, paenitet, piget, pudet, and tacdet take the accusative of the person affected, and the genitive of the cause of the feeling.

- 20. Transitive verbs take the accusative of the direct object, and the dative of the indirect object.
- 21. Many intransitive verbs take the dative especially those signifying favor, help, injure, please, displease, trust, distrust, command, obey, serve, resist, indulge, spare, pardon, envy, threaten, believe, persuade, and the like.
- 22. The dative of the indirect object is used with many verbs compounded with ad, ante, circum, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, sub, and super.
- 23. The dative of reference is used to denote the person to whom a statement refers or of whom it is true, or to whom it is of interest.
  - 24. The dative is used with forms of sum to denote the possessor.
  - 25. The dative is used with the gerundive to express the agent.
- 26. The dative is often used to express the purpose or tendency of an action. This is often used with another dative (Reference), denoting the person concerned.
- 27. The dative is used with adjectives denoting friendliness, hostility, likeness, unlikeness, equality, nearness, relation, filness, etc.
  - 28. The direct object of a verb is in the accusative case.
  - 29. The accusative is used in exclamations.
- 30. Verbs meaning to make, choose, call, show, etc., may take two accusatives, one of the direct object, the other of the predicate accusative.
  - 31. A predicate accusative may be an adjective as well as a noun.
- 32. Some verbs meaning to ask, demand, teach, conceal, etc., take two accusatives, one of the person, the other of the thing.
- 33. Verbs compounded with circum or trans may take two accusatives, one depending on the verb, the other on the preposition.
- 34. The limit of motion is expressed by the accusative with a preposition.
- 35. With names of towns, small islands, domus, and rūs the preposition is regularly omitted.
  - 36. Extent of time or space is regularly expressed by the accusative.
- 37. Verbs or adjectives denoting separation take the ablative with or without a preposition. The preposition is usually omitted with words of freeing, depriving, and lacking.
- 38. The personal agent with a passive verb is expressed by the ablative with  $\bar{\mathbf{a}}$  or  $\mathbf{ab}$ .
- 39. The comparative adjectives are regularly followed by quam and a substantive in the same case.

- 40. The ablative is used to denote cause. The ablative of cause is sometimes used with a preposition, ab, de, or ex.
- 41. Accompaniment is regularly expressed by the ablative with the preposition cum.
- 42. The ablative is used to denote the manner in which an act is performed. If the noun is unaccompanied by an adjective, the preposition cum is also used.
- 43. The ablative of a noun modified by an adjective is used to denote a quality. This construction may be used attributively or predicatively.
- 44. The ablative is used to denote the means or instrument by which an act is done.
- 45. The ablative of means is used with ūtor, fruor, fungor, potior, and vescor.
  - 46. The expressions opus est and usus est take the ablative.
  - 47. Verbs meaning to fill and adjectives meaning full take the ablative.
- 48. Two words in the ablative, usually a noun or pronoun and a participle, are often used in a loose connection with a sentence to express any one of a number of ideas, such as time, cause, manner, condition, concession, etc.
- 49. The ablative is used with verbs of buying and selling to denote the price.
- 50. The ablative is used with comparatives and words implying comparison to show the degree of difference.
- 51. The ablative of specification is used to denote that in respect to which something is or is not true.
  - 52. The ablative of specification is used with dignus and indignus.
- 53. The place where a thing is or is done is usually expressed by the ablative with in.
- 54. Names of towns, however, except singulars of the first and second declensions take the ablative without a preposition.
- 55. Place from which is regularly expressed by the ablative with the preposition ab, dē, or ex.
- 56. Names of towns, however, domus and rūs, use the ablative without a preposition.
- 57. The time when or within which anything takes place is expressed by the ablative.
- 58. The locative case denotes place where. It occurs regularly in the singular names of towns and small islands of the first and second declensions, and also in a few special words, like domī, humī, bellī, mīlitiae, and rūrī.

- 59. The subjunctive is used to express an exhortation. The negative is  $n\bar{\mathbf{e}}$ .
- 60. The subjunctive is used in questions of a purely rhetorical nature, implying the impossibility of the thing mentioned and expecting no answer. The negative is non.
- 61. The optative subjunctive is used to express a wish. The negative is ne.
- 62. The potential subjunctive is used to express ideas set forth by English may, should, or would. The negative is non.
  - 63. Affirmative commands or requests are expressed by the imperative.
- 64. Negative commands or prohibition may be expressed by nōlī, or nōlīte with the infinitive, by cavē or cavēte (nē) with the present subjunctive, or by the perfect subjunctive with nē.
- 65. According to the rules of tense sequence, the principal tenses of the indicative are followed by the principal tenses of the subjunctive; the historical by the historical.
- 66. Purpose is usually expressed by a subjunctive clause introduced by ut if affirmative, by ne if negative.
  - 67. The subjunctive is used in relative clauses to express purpose.
- 68. When a purpose clause contains an adjective or adverb in the comparative degree, it is always introduced by quō.
- 69. When the antecedent of a relative pronoun is indefinite, and the clause expresses some quality or characteristic of it, the subjunctive is used.
- 70. Causal clauses take the indicative if the reason is given on the authority of the writer or speaker himself; the subjunctive if given on the authority of some one else.
  - 71. Cum meaning since takes the subjunctive.
- 72. Result is regularly expressed by the subjunctive introduced by ut. The negative is non.
  - 73. Clauses introduced by quamquam take the indicative.
- 74. Cum meaning when takes the indicative if the clause refers to present or future time.
- 75. When cum, meaning when, refers to past time, the indicative is used when the time is merely defined; but the subjunctive is used when some circumstance connected with it is stated.
- 76. Postquam, after; ubi, ut, when; and simul ac (simul atque), cum primum, as soon as, referring to a past occurrence, take the indicative, usually the perfect.
- 77. Dum, donec, quoad, and quamdiu, meaning as long as, while, take the indicative; usually the same tense as that of the main verb.

- 78. Dum, meaning as long as, while, usually takes the present indicative, regardless of the tense of the main verb.
- 79. Dum, donec, and quoad, meaning until, take the subjunctive when referring to time after that of the main verb, but the indicative when referring to time before that of the main verb.
- 80. Quod, meaning that or the fact that, introduces the only common substantive clause with the verb in the indicative.
- 81. Clauses with the subjunctive are used as objects of verbs meaning to command, induce, advise, ask, allow, decide, strive, accomplish, etc. The connective is ut or nē.
- 82. Verbs of hindering are followed by the subjunctive in a substantive clause introduced by ne, quin, or quominus.

- 84. Verbs meaning to wish and to desire are followed by the subjunctive introduced by ut or ne.
- 85. Verbs meaning to fear are followed by the subjunctive introduced by nē or ut. Remember that after verbs of fearing nē means that, lest; and ut means that not.
- 86. Verbs meaning to bring about, to accomplish take the subjunctive introduced by ut or ut non.
- 87. Clauses with the subjunctive introduced by ut or ut non are often used as the subject of impersonal verbs.
- 88. Indirect questions take the subjunctive, and depend on verbs of asking, inquiring, and the like.
- 89. A conditional sentence has two parts, the protasis or condition, and the apodosis or conclusion. The protasis or condition is regularly introduced by si, if; nisi, unless; or sin, but if.
- 90. Simple conditions merely state a case, and imply nothing as to its reality or fulfilment. They may be in present, past, or future time, and have in each case the proper tense of the indicative.
- 91. The condition of possibility states a case as being possible in some future time. The verbs in both parts of the sentence are in the subjunctive and are usually translated with the auxiliaries should and would respectively.
- 92. Conditions contrary to fact state situations which do not exist. The subjunctive is used in both clauses, the imperfect for a contrary to fact condition in present time, the pluperfect for a contrary to fact condition in past time.
  - 93. Declarative sentences on being put into indirect discourse change their main clause to the infinitive with a subject accusative, and all subordinate clauses take the subjunctive.

- 94. Tenses of the infinitive in indirect discourse denote time not by themselves, but with reference to the verb on which they depend.
- 95. The infinitive is used as the subject of est and various impersonal verbs. When so used, the infinitive may have a subject accusative and may take a predicate noun or adjective.
- 96. The infinitive without the subject accusative is used as the object of many verbs, to complete their meaning. These are known as complementary infinitives.
- 97. The infinitive with the subject accusative is used as the object of many verbs.
- 98. A participle denotes time with reference to that of the verb in its own clause.
- 99. The gerund is a verbal noun. As a verb it governs cases, and as a noun it itself may be used in the various constructions of each case.
- 100. The gerund is a verbal adjective. As a verb it governs cases, and as an adjective it agrees in gender, number, and case with the noun it modifies.
  - 101. The supine in -um is used with verbs of motion to express purpose.
- 102. The supine in  $-\bar{\mathbf{u}}$  is used with adjectives as an ablative of specification.

THE APOSTLES' CREED

4. Crēdō in Deum, Patrem omnipotentem, Creātōrem caelī et terrae. Et in Iēsum Christum, Fīlium eius ūnicum, Dominum nostrum; quī conceptus est dē Spīritū Sanctō, nātus ex Marīā Virgine, passus sub Pontiō Pīlatō, crucifixus, mortuus, et sepultus; dēscendit ad inferōs; tertiā diē resurrēxit ā mortuīs; ascendit ad caelōs, sedet ad dextram Deī Patris omnipotentis; inde ventūrus est iūdicāre vīvōs et mortuōs. Crēdō in Spīritum Sanctum, sanctam Ecclēsiam Catholicam, Sanctōrum commūniōnem, remissionem peccātōrum, carnis resurrectionem, vītam aeternam. Amen.

GLORIA PATRI

5. Gloria Patri, et Filio, et Spīritui Sancto. Sīcut erat in principio, et nunc, et semper, et in saecula saeculorum. Amen.

THE CONFITEOR

6. Confiteor Deo omnipotenti, beatae Mariae semper virgini, beato Michaeli archangelo, beato Ioanni Baptistae, sanctis apostolis Petro et Paulo, et omnibus sanctis, quia peccavi nimis, cogitatione, verbo, et opere, mea culpa, mea culpa, mea maxima culpa. Ideo precor beatam Mariam semper virginem, beatum Michaelem archangelum, beatum Ioannem Baptistam, sanctos apostolos Petrum et Paulum, et omnes sanctos, orare pro me ad Dominum Deum nostrum.

Misereātur meī omnipotens Deus, et dimissīs peccātīs meīs, perdūcat mē ad vītam aeternam. Amen.

Indulgentiam, absolūtionem, et remissionem peccatorum meorum, tribuat mihi omnipotens et misericors Dominus. Amen.

7. SALVĒ REGĪNA

Salvē, Regīna, Māter misericordiae;
Vīta, dulcēdo, et spēs nostra, salvē.
Ad tē clāmāmus, exulēs fīliī Hevae;
Ad tē suspīrāmus, gementēs et flentēs in hāc lacrymārum valle.
Eia ergō, Advocāta nostra,
Illōs tuōs misericordēs oculōs ad nōs converte;
Et Iēsum, benedictum fructum ventris tuī, Nōbīs post hōc exilium ostende.
O clēmens, O pia, O dulcis Virgo Marīa.

V. Orā prō nōbīs, sancta Deī Genitrix,

R. Ut dignī efficiāmur promissionibus Christī.

MEMORĀRE

8. Memorāre, O piissima Virgo Marīa, non esse audītum ā saeculo, quemquam ad tua currentem praesidia, tua implorantem auxilia, tua petentem suffrāgia, esse dērelictum. Ego, tālī animātus confīdentiā, ad tē, Virgo Virginum, Māter, curro; ad te venio, coram tē gemēns peccātor assisto. Nolī, Māter Verbī, verba mea dēspicere, sed audī propitia et exaudī. Amen.

OREMUS

9. Grātiam tuam, quaesumus, Domine, mentibus nostrīs infunde; ut quī, angelō nuntiante, Christī fīliī tuī incarnātionem cognōvimus, per passionem eius et crucem ad resurrectionis gloriam perdūcāmur; per eundem Christum Dominum nostrum. Amen.

11. DĒ NATIVITĀTE DOMINĪ<sup>1</sup>

Puer nātus in Bethlehem,
Unde gaudet Ierusalem.
Hīc iacet in praesēpiō,
Quī regnat sine terminō.
Cognōvit bōs et asinus
Quod puer erat Dominus.
Rēgēs dē Sabā veniunt
Aurum, tūs, myrrham offerunt.
Intrantēs domum invīcem
Novum salūtant Principem,

De matre natus Virgine Sine virīli sēmine; Sine serpentis vulnere Dē nostrō vēnit sanguine; In carne nobīs similis, Peccātō sed dissimilis; Ut redderet nos hominēs Deo et sibi similēs.

In hoc natalī gaudeō Benedicāmus Dominō.

Laudētur sancta Trīnitas, Deō dīcāmus grātiās.

12. DE RESURRECTIONE DOMINI 2

Pone luctum, Magdalena, Et serena lacrimas; Non est iam Simonis coena, Non cur fletum exprimas; Causae mille sunt laetandi, Causae mille exultandi: Alleluia resonet.

Sume rīsum, Magdalēna, Frons nitescat lūcida; Dēmigrāvit omnis poena, Lux coruscat fulgida; Christus mundum līberāvit, Et dē morte triumphāvit: Alleluia resonet.

Gaude, plaude, Magdalena, Tumba Christus exiit, Tristis est peracta scēna, Victor mortis rediit; Quem deflebās morientem, Nunc arrīdē resurgentem: Alleluia resonet. Tolle vultum, Magdalēna, Redivīvum obstupe; Vidē frons quam sit amoena, Quinque plagās aspice; Fulgent sīcut margarītae, Ornāmenta novae vītae: Alleluia resonet.

Vive, vive, Magdalena, Tua lux reversa est, Gaudiis turgescat vena, Mortis vis abstersa est; Moesti procul sunt dolores, Laeti redeant amores: Alleluia resonet.

13. IN PASSIONE DOMINI 1

Quam despectus, quam deiectus, Rex eaelorum est effectus, Ut salvaret saeculum; Esurivit et sitīvit, Pauper et egenus īvit Usque ad patibulum.

Recordare paupertătis, Et extrēmae vIlitătis, Et gravis supplicit. Sī es compos rationis, Esto memor passionis, Fellis et absinthit.

Cum deductus est immensus, Et in cruce tunc suspensus, Fügerunt discipuli. Manüs, pedes perföderunt, Et aceto potaverunt Summum Regem saeculi; Cūius oculi beāti Sunt in crūce obscūrāti, Et vultus expalluit: Suō corporī tunc nūdō Nōn remansit pulchritūdo, Decor omnis aufūgit.

Qui haec audis, ingemisce, Et in istis planctum misce, Et cordis moestitiäs: Corpus ange, corde plange, Mentem frange, manū tange Christi mortis saevitas.

Virum respice dolorum, Et novissimum virorum, Fortem ad supplicia. Tibi gratum sit et aequum Iam in cruce morī sēcum, Compatī convīcia.

Crucifixe, fac mē fortem, Ut libenter tuam mortem Plangam, dōnec vixerō. Tēcum volō vulnerārī, Te libenter amplexārī In cruce dēsīderō.

DE CRUCE DOMINI

Crux ave benedicta!
Per te mors est devicta,
In te pependit Deus,
Rex et Salvator meus.
Tu arborum regina,
Salutis medicina,
Pressorum est levamen,
Et tristium solamen.

Ō sacrōsanctum lignum!
Tū vītae nostrae signum,
Tulistī fructum Iēsum
Hūmanī cordis ēsum
Dum crucis inimīcōs,
Vocābis, et amīcōs,
O Iēsu, Fīlī Deī,
Sīs, ōrō, memor meī.

C. IULII CAESARIS

De Bello Gallico

LIBER TERTIUS

Caesar sends Galba against the Nantuates, Veragri, and Seduni. Galba establishes winter quarters at Octodurus.

29. Cum in Italiam proficisceretur Caesar, Servium Galbam cum legione duodecima et parte equitatus in Nantuates, Veragros, Sedunosque misit, qui a finibus Allobrogum et lacu Lemanno et flümine Rhodano ad summas Alpes pertinent. Causa mittendi fuit quod iter per Alpes quo magno cum periculo magnisque cum portoriis¹ mercatores ire consuerant,² patefieri volebat. Huic permisit, si opus esse arbitraretur, uti in his locis legionem hiemandi causa collocaret. Galba, secundis aliquot³ proeliis factis castellisque compluribus eorum expugnatis missis ad eum undique legatis obsidibusque datis et pace facta, constituit cohortes duas in Nantuatibus collocare et ipse cum reliquis eius legionis cohortibus in vico Veragrorum, qui appellatur Octodurus, hiemare; qui vicus positus in valle,⁴ non magna⁵ adiecta⁶ planitie² altissimis montibus undique continetur. Cum³ hic in duas partes flümine divideretur, alteram partem eius vici Gallis concessit, alteram vacuam ab his relictam cohortibus attribuit.⁰ Eum locum vallo fossaque mūnīvit.
